

To whom it may concern,

I am thrilled to write on behalf of James Warnecke to recommend him for your team. I have known James for several years now and he has some really big ideas and even larger dreams about working and doing more in the field of Information Technology.

He is dedicated and hardworking, follows through on projects he is working on, finds new and innovative ways to tackle problems head on, and does not quit when problems seem to have no solution.

For the last several months, we have been collaborating on a project. The project has a lot of promise and James has a lot of insight into it. Working with him on this project has shown me how dedicated he is to furthering technology for the betterment of others and putting others before himself.

Overall, James is an intelligent and dedicated individual. This is my recommendation of him. From what I've observed, he will make a great employee and asset at with your team

Sincerely,

Philip Perron
